Expenses of the federal class action lawsuit

If you are a "noncustodial" parent because of any TEXAS "family" court (or other Texas court), with an active case, or at least recent case, and without formal CPS history, you are most likely eligible to join online as a fellow co-plaintiff.

The following is a considered listing of all expected expenses involved for successfully prosecuting the federal class action lawsuit against the rogue Texas family court system, and all donations received go directly to one (1) or more of the following crucial needs:

- TexasPRA organization, network, setup, administration, domain, hosting, email, and miscellaneous related costs
- reasonable pay to the five (5) member legal scholar team working behind the scenes to generate the most bulletproof, iron-clad class action case documents possible
- standard new federal civil case filing fees (total of $405)
- paperwork printing, copies, envelopes, exhibit red ink stamp, etc. ($75-$100)
- professional process server fees to serve three (3) Texas defendants ($300-$450)
- certified mail package costs for several governmental recipients ($100-$150)
- employing the premier Texas-focused statewide press release service to get directly to virtually all Texas media ($150) <https://www.texaspress.com/press-release-service>
- Three major nationwide press release services (@ $250-$500 each, total $1000 max)
- Noon downtown Austin presser event upon filing the new class action suit (at steps of the federal courthouse itself, or about one mile away at the TX Capitol or at the TX Supreme Court, permit fees if any to reserve whichever event location, 500+ hand signs pre-printed to hand out onsite and/or make sign available for on-demand purchase and shipping/delivery ahead of time, printed supply of pamphlets/brochures/handouts, PA equipment, tripods + video cameras, actual portable stage or use steps/sidewalk, etc.)
- Possible simultaneous rally events also on the steps of the federal courthouses in Ft. Worth, Dallas, Houston, San Antonio, El Paso, Lubbock, and other large TX metro areas on the day of filing the new class action
- meals, travel, miscellaneous to recruit public support by Texas-resident celebrities screwed by family courts

The total estimated need for coverage of all expenses is roughly between $15K-$25K to cover everything above, then $5K+ for any appeal and $5K+ to go to SCOTUS, if needed.
